

Conclusion

1. Asking Jesus into my life will take courage.

- I must be willing to have the world laugh at me because of Jesus.
- I must be willing to give up control of my life and let Jesus be in charge.
- I must be willing to obey what God asks, even when it is hard.

2. Where did Joseph find the courage to take Mary and Jesus into his life?

- I think that when Joseph realized Mary courageously sacrificed her life to be willing to give birth to Jesus, the one who would save him from his sin, that helped him find the courage to give up his life to care for her. In a similar way, the more we learn about how courageously Jesus gave up his life to save us, the more courage we will find to give up our lives to serve our savior.

3. What do Mary and Joseph teach us about what it means to become a Christian?

- We are like Mary. We are helpless, rejected, and full of shame. We need someone to save us. Jesus is like Joseph. Just as Joseph chose to give up his life to be Mary's earthly savior, Jesus chose to give up his life to our heavenly savior. He died for our sin to bring us back to God.
